    *   As an immediate response to the pandemic, Ramco Systems had augmented its existing facial recognition-based attendance, RamcoGEEK with thermal screening, to enable touchless experience. Sensing the urgent need for holistic contact tracing and safe distancing approaches to ensure workplace health and safety, Ramco Systems further partnered with two start-ups –- U.S. based start-up Navigine and Singapore-based Hipla Technologies to leverage Real-Time Location System (RTLS) and CCTV-based Artificial Intelligence to detect safe-distancing violations within the workplace, enabling necessary health and safety protocols aligned with organizational policies. While millions have adapted to working from home, there is a large percentage of essential workers needed on-site at factories, plants, offices, restaurants, e-commerce warehouses and facilities providing utilities and important services. Many organizations also see the need for office workers to return at least intermittently in split shifts while logging in remotely some of the time.

The production of Ramco's Pandemic Control System has been yielding visible results with some of the clients clocking a little over 9 Mln. recognitions annually resulting in touch-less attendance avoiding the spread of virus, and the screening of temperature at entrance. This has also resulted in better Occupancy Management with the help of surveys, as only eligible people can be allowed to enter the office limiting the number of people as per the Regulatory needs defined by individual countries.

*   With applications constantly getting upgraded, we at Ramco have been innovating and changing the way users work with the Outlook Mailbox, turning it into a self-service screen for employees. *   Ramco's chatbot, Ramco CHIA, an Artificial Intelligence driven Virtual Assistant which uses Deep Learning and Natural Language Processing to simplify day-to-day HR transactions, has been maturing over the years. To date, Ramco CHIA clocks around 2 Mln. conversations annually, across 30+ customers, saving close to 1 Mln. minutes every year. Some of the recently added chatbot use cases include: L1 Payroll Support, Timesheet Management, Employee Personal Information, HR Admin, and SPOC Admin.
